ComEd will never call or visit your home to:

PROJECT DETAILS

With the increasing popularity of television streaming, the Federal Communications Commission sold the television frequencies known as a broadcast spectrum to cellular companies which forced all TV stations to change broadcast frequencies while also transitioning from analog transmitters to digital. Making this transition was no easy task - the existing transmitter had to remain operational while construction was on-going. In order to maintain a safe working environment, BEAR built clean rooms, sealed from dust and moved them as construction moved through the space. With precision construction and meticulous TV engineering, the millions of viewers of NBC never noticed the spectrum switch which only took the station off air briefly during one overnight.

Forward means taking bold steps toward a clean energy future.

At Nicor Gas, we're doing just that and are committed to doing even more. We're leading the way by exploring next generation energy solutions, like renewable natural gas and the potential for hydrogen and have committed to the conservation of 10,000 acres of open land in the communities we serve. And, through our investments in pipeline and infrastructure modernization, we've reduced our annual operational greenhouse gas emissions by 54% over a ten-year period.

A net-zero energy future is possible. That's why we're fueling forward with a goal of becoming net-zero methane emissions from our operations by 2030. Learn more at nicorgas.com.

Happy New Year!

As we approach the end of another year, we wanted to take the time to say 'thank you.' It is a privilege to work with you, and we are honored to work with clients who, over the years, have become much more than just valued clients, but dear friends.

While 2021 has been a tough year in many ways, it has made us truly appreciate the special people in our lives – that includes you. Many of our blessings would not be possible without you.

More than ever before, we wish you good health and prosperity in 2022! May the new year be exciting, productive, and prosperous.
